Title: SPECIAL SESSION: Transformational Leadership: No Longer Novel, but Critical for Future Success

Keywords: Organizational culture, Professional development and Transformational leadership

Description/Overview: This session focuses on the hallmark characteristics of transformational leadership, organizational impact, employee satisfaction, the connection to academic and practice partnerships, and implications for future practice.

References:
Pickerell, K. J. (2014). A transformational leadership program: A necessity in today's healthcare environment (Graduate theses, dissertations, and Capstones Paper 5). Bellarmine University, Louisville, USA.

Organizer
Ashley Singh, DNP, RN, EBP-C
Chatham University
Assistant Professor
Mars PA
USA

Author Summary: Ashley Singh is an assistant professor in a Doctor of Nursing Practice program in Pittsburgh, PA. She is currently enrolled in a DNP-PhD program to continue to build her scholarly work and provide innovative education to nurse leaders and educators across the nursing disciplines. To date, Ashley has published several peer-reviewed articles, online leadership development continuing education courses, and has presented at local, and national conferences.